The Charlotte Observer	Katherine Peralta	EOC	Just following up a voicemail I left you. Am wondering if operations at the Haile Gold Mine will be affected by the spill at the Colorado gold mine. That's a Romarco Minerals mine and it is in Kershaw, SC. Let me know if you can talk for a few minutes. Just got your VM, sorry, was on the other line. Hoping to file something within two hours, if possible. If that's too quick today, it can wait until Monday.	kperalta@charlotteobserver.com	804-358-5079 and Mobile: 704-651-4156
KCNC TV CBS 4 Denver	Rick Sallinger	EOC	In an interview Todd Hennis, owner of the Gold King mine stated that the EPA forced him to open the mine to your agency four years ago by fining him $35,000 per day. He also claimed that the water that came out of the Gold King originated in the Sunnyside mine. He said this can be proven with tests that show the mineral content of the water. Please let me know the EPA response if any.	RSallinger@cbs.com	303-590-8944
Bloomberg	Christopher Flavelle	EOC	Laura, as I mentioned on the phone, I'm trying to find out whether the EPA's removal action at Gold King, which I'm told was designated "time critical," was preceded by an engineering evaluation. My understanding is that such evaluations aren't required for time-critical removal actions, but that doesn't necessarily mean none was conducted. Could you let me know? Christie, one more question for tomorrow: roughly how many removal or remediation efforts does the EPA undertake each year, and how many involve the time-critical designation?	cflavelle@bloomberg.net
St. Louis Business Journal	Ryan Collins-Intern	EOC	I had a few inquiries about the role of Environmental Restoration LLC's role in the spill in Colorado. Is there anyone who could call me with some details of the company's contract with the EPA as soon as they can? And can I get a copy of the contract to review? My office number is (314) 421-8335. My cell is (417) 849-2570. I've contacted Rusty Harris-Bishop, who was very helpful, but unfortunately he did not have the information I needed at this time. I know Environmental Restoration LLC was hired for emergency and rapid response services, but I would like a few more specific details as well as information as to their current role in the clean up action.	rcollins@bizjournals.com	o: (314) 421-8335, c: (417) 849-2570
Gray TV	Peter Zampa	EOC	Peter Zampa here from Gray DC – I was hoping to set up an interview for this story sometime early next week. We really want to focus on the repercussions of spillage in waterways and how the EPA is held accountable. Please let me know if I can speak with you or someone soon!	Peter.Zampa@gray.tv	(202)-441-8930
Navajo Post	Adam Wojciechowski	EOC	I downloaded the spreadsheet that was just released concerning the surface water levels of the Animas River. What I am looking for is if there were any water readings taken from the source at the Gold King Mine within the same parameters. According to a press release from August 5, "EPA is taking the lead on efforts to contain the leak and flow from the mine is now controlled." By "controlled" does this mean the flow from the mine has stopped, or is it still leaking and is being diverted elsewhere?	aw@thenavajopost.com	623.640.4447
Daily Times	Noel Smith	EOC	Hi Robert - Where will Administrator McCarthy be traveling to tomorrow? Thank you.	nsmith@daily-times.com	Office: (505) 564-4636, Cell: (505) 436-0094
Engineering News-Record	Nick Zeman	EOC	What is our response to the accusation (http://www.startribune.com/navajo-nation-says-it-feels-brunt-of-colorado-mine-leak/321518301/) that state of Colorado is trying to blame EPA for a much bigger state problem on mines?	Not Provided	213-973-3855
Denver Post	Bruce Finley	EOC	How many claims for damages received so far? What has EPA done so far to pay for damages? Can I say [EPA] assumes full liability?	bfinley@denverpost.com
Colorado Public Radio	Radic Ryan Warner	Monica Lee	Hi there. I'm in communication with a member of the Animas Stakeholders Group, Peter Butler. He says the EPA did not consult with the group about Gold King and that, in general, this has been a trend when the agency works on mines that the group has a lot of expertise on. May I please get the agency's response? We're radio-- so a voice would be lovely :)	rwarner@cprmail.org
Breitbart News	Michael Patrick Leahy	EOC	Todd Hennis, owner of the Gold King mine, claims that the EPA coerced him to grant access to this mine on threat of a $35,000 a day fine. Can you confirm or deny this?	michaelpatrickleahy@gmail.com

I wanted to tell you that I am working on an article for the New York Times that focuses on the reason the E.P.A. was in the Silverton area in the first place — it was cleaning up the mess left by others. The piece will focus on the history and legacy of mining in southwest Colorado, not necessarily on the accident. I have already interviewed Gov. Hickenlooper for the piece. I am writing to see if Administrator McCarthy is interested in chatting briefly via telephone for this article — I'd ask her to talk about the EPA resources that go into mine cleanup across the country, what kind of priority this issue has at the agency, and what she thinks the country needs to do to address this larger problem of abandoned mines. I'm reporting this story this weekend and could chat today, Saturday or Sunday.

I'm a reporter for Law360 and I'm writing about the Navajo Nation calling today for the EPA to release information about the contaminants released into the Animas River from Gold King Mine. Does the agency know what those contaminants are? And what is the EPA's plan for cleaning up the spill? If someone from the agency would like to speak to me about the issue, my number is 314-365-8242 and my deadline is 5:30pm EST.

I wanted to reach out as we are interested in inviting an EPA guest to talk about the Colorado River — for our 1030am show this morning. I realize this is an incredibly last minute request but would really appreciate your perspective on the issue. It could be via Skype and will take no longer than 5 minutes. Please let me know if this might be possible?

On the general state of tailings dams and mines. How many such storage facilities are there across the country? How does the EPA monitor the maintenance and condition of mines and dams that are holding contaminated water? Are abandoned mines, like Gold King, monitored?

I hope this note finds you well. My name is Sarah McHaney, I am a producer at the PBS NewsHour. We are doing a segment tonight on the Animas River in Colorado and the active spill in the region. We are wondering if the EPA is planning on making anyone available to the press today about the situation. We would love to speak to someone either on the national or regional level. Judy Woodruff is the correspondent doing this interview. We would ask some basic questions about how this spill occurred, how dangerous it is to the community, and what are the efforts already underway to curb the spill. Then bigger picture questions about what a full cleanup will take, if there is a way to prevent future spills of this nature, and if you live near this river what you should be doing in the meantime. Please let me know as soon as possible if someone is available. We can be somewhat flexible on timing, but our ideal windows are between 4:15pm EST — 5:15pm EST or live at 6:20pm EST.

What is the EPA's assessment of the impact so far with regards to fish and wildlife and on drinking water. When will the water hit Lake Powell? Will this spill have an impact on drinking water and agricultural water for other states. I am thinking this comes as a particularly bad time for California, which is already suffering water emergency. Is this toxic spill going to impact water supplies in California? How long will it take to clean up? Any impact on economy and drinking water supplies, if so for how many people?

A reporter from the Sacramento Valley Mirror, a weekly newspaper, is asking whether there are any plans to file any criminal charges in response to the "obviously criminal" Gold King Mine incident. I told him I knew of no such charges, but would seek additional info. Also, the reporter is asking whether similar incidents have prompted criminal charges in the past. A question for OECA?

			Does EPA have an updated assessment of the amount of mine wastewater that was spilled into the Animas River on August 5? New reports are saying it is around 3 million gallons but is there any updated assessment showing which heavy metals might have been in the wastewater? Also, I need to know if an updated press release has been issued by EPA's regional administrator Shaun McGrath with more information about the Gold King Mine Spill. I seem to be finding only week-old information at this point. Finally, I was told there is a press call with media today with updates about the spill. How do I listen in on that call? I cannot seem to find anything on Region 8's website or the main EPA website about this.	danielbloom@cqrilcall.com

Also, Colorado's governor has told us a decision on when the river will reopen will be made today, but the Region 8 office does not know if that is the case. Can you tell me if that is true? Can we get a list of those or is there a way to search on the Superfund website?--does the EPA have any estimate on total number of abandoned mines? Specific to Gold King Mine--was a preliminary assessment ever completed on the Gold King Mine or for a group of mines including Gold King?--it's my understanding that the EPA has said a water treatment plant estimated to cost $12-$17m (and $1M a year to operate) would be able to clean the water in the Animas. 			1) I've been told by non-profit group Earth Work Action that the mine in Colorado where the leak occurred has been leaking acid mine drainage at a rate of about 50-250 gallons a minute for years, along with 3 other mines in the area. Is that your understanding? 2) The EPA contractors were attempting to put a pipe into the adit (mine opening) in order to collect the water and prevent it from continuing to pollute Cement Creek and the Animas River. Is that a correct characterization? I'd like to understand more about what happens during that process – what kind of equipment was used and why? What caused the leak? Was there a misjudgment of how much water had built up and the pressure? 3) Is it true that the EPA had wanted for years to designate the area a superfund site but received much opposition from community leaders? Can the EPA designate a site a superfund area without support from a community? 4) I'm also wondering if the type of mining pollution that was created by this particular mine is common with all mines. 5) Earth Work Action tells me that the price to clean up these sites has been estimated by the EPA at $50 billion, and there is no steady funding source, leaving the EPA, states and local governments to cobble together resources for clean-up. Is that true? 6) The advocacy group also claims that 40% of the streams in the headwaters of western watersheds have been polluted by hardrock mining. Is that true? Is there more context needed here? Is there some amount of pollution that's allowable ie safe?	Rene.Marsh@turner.com

Reuters News

So my main question is whether there will be any telephone call-in access for today's visit to Durango by Administrator McCarthy? If there is, would you please furnish me and our EPA correspondent in Washington, Valerie Volcovici, cc'd above, the phone number and passcode we'd need. Also, please include the two of us, as well as the group email address, GeneralNews.West@thomsonreuters.com on any distribution list for further information, statements, updates etc from the Gold King Mine waste release.

Do you have statements from Administrator McCarthy available regarding the Gold King Mine incident? (I'm particularly interested in any comments that reference farming communities impacted by the spill). Will there be a teleconference call today?

What are you hearing about the river opening in Durango on Monday? And a parade of rafts on Tuesday? Could I be subscribed for Gold King updates? Thanks. Can you add me to the distribution list for the Gold King Mine story?
